```
    E          A                E
(1)  I finally  broke into the prison
    B                          E     E7
     I found my place in the chain
    A                  E             Ami
     Even damnation is poisoned with rainbows
    E
     All the brave young men
    G#                                C#mi
     They're waiting now to see a signal
              A               F#           B   B7
    Which some killer will be lighting for pay

    A                      E               Ami
(R)  Into this furnace I ask you now to venture
    E          B7        A    A E
    You whom I cannot betray

    E                A       E
(2)  I fought in the old revolution
    B                                  E    E7
     On the side of the ghost and the King
    A                                  E                      Ami
     Of course I was very young and I thought that we were winning
     I can't pretend
    G#                                C#mi
     I still feel very much like singing
           A          F#      B   B7
    As they carry the bodies away

    E              A          E
(3)  Lately you've started to stutter
    B                          E   E7
     As though you had nothing to say
    A                          E         Ami
     To all of my architects let me be traitor
    E
     Now let me say
    G#                    C#mi
     I myself gave the order
       A             F#                B    B7
    To sleep and to search and to destroy

    E                  A          E
(4)  Yes, you who are broken by power
    B                         E   E7
     You who are absent all day
    A                                          E           Ami
     You who are kings for the sake of your children's story
     The hand of your beggar
    G#                          C#mi
     Is burdened down with money
        A             F#        B    B7
    The hand of your lover is clay
